Oxentia Ltd recognised as an Investor in People

Oxentia Ltd, Oxford's Global Innovation Consultancy, has been awarded accreditation against the Investors in People Standard at the Silver Level, demonstrating the company's commitment to realising the potential of their people.

Investors in People is the international standard for people management, defining what it takes to lead, support and manage people effectively to achieve sustainable results. Underpinning the Standard is the Investors in People framework, reflecting the latest workplace trends, essential skills and effective structures required to outperform in any industry. Working with clients across the globe, Investors in People enables organisations to benchmark against the best in the business on an international scale.

Paul Devoy, Head of Investors in People, said: "We'd like to congratulate Oxentia Ltd, Investors in People accreditation is the sign of a great employer, and an organisation committed to achieving success by realising the potential of their people. Oxentia should be extremely proud of their achievement."

Oxentia started life as an operating division of Oxford University Innovation, the technology transfer company of the University of Oxford, and now works in partnership with teams around the world to build capacity, develop capability and create opportunities to enable innovation. With its roots in Oxford, Oxentia's outlook is truly global – since 2004, the team have supported and empowered clients in over 70 countries. Now an independent company, employing 22 staff and operating a network of international associates, Oxentia works with universities, governments, investors, early-career researchers, and corporate R&D teams.

Commenting on the award, Dr Steve Cleverley, Chief Executive Officer of Oxentia said "I am absolutely delighted that Oxentia has been awarded the Silver Investors in People Standard. In today's competitive environment, employees have choices; we want all our staff to look forward to coming to work, deliver exciting and valued work for our clients, and grow and develop in their roles. "We're aiming for Oxentia to be a great place to work and the Silver Investors in People Standard is an acknowledgement that we are on the right path".
